- Letter, Z. Macaulay to John Campbell, 20 June 1798, Thornton Hill. 4 pages. Ref. Plan to send students to England, costs, problem of securing missionaries. Reference letters from Campbell to Macaulay dated 30 March and 4 April 1798.
- Letter, H. Thornton to John Campbell, 14 February 1799, 1 page. Ref. problem of transporting students during wartime. Preferred path through America.
- Letter, Babington to John Campbell, 22 August 1798. 1 page. Ref. a gift of £100 from Babington to Campbell and notification of expenditures.
- Letter, Thornton to Campbell, 28 September 1798. 2 pages. Ref. mentions a letter from Macaulay to Thornton describing plans to bring children for an education, "a commission for 30 African boys & 5 Afr. 'Girls'". T wants to know the precise financial arrangements.
- Letter, Thornton to Campbell, 26 October 1798. 3 pages. Ref. wants further details of financial arrangements. Wants to know the name of the sponsor in Edinburgh. Dawes has agreed to host (house?) some while in London. It should cost no less than £5-600 per annum to cover their costs. Is the sponsor willing to agree to that expense? Possible subscription at London.
- Letter, Wilberforce to Campbell, 23 September 1796. 2 pages. A letter from Campbell to Wilberforce has been circulating, and has finally found him. Apparently, this is the first mention of a plan to bring Africans to England. Wilberforce agrees to pass it on to Thornton.
- Letter, T. Babington to Campbell, 26 April 179[?6]. 3 pages. Ref. receipt of "your little book." Has enclosed £100 for Margaret. Mention of brother Alexander. This letter primarily focuses on Babington relatives in Edinburgh and Campbell's activities as a conveyer of funds to them [very small amounts]. Nothing here about students.
- Letter, Charles Grant to Campbell, 1 May 1797, Battersea Rise. 3 pages. Ref. "your scheme of a seminary for Africans" – Grant had met with Campbell while in Edinburgh and had reported the substance of their conversation to Wilberforce and Thornton. "We" considered that it best to postpone the project until war had ended. Several reasons listed for postponement.
